ACCUTECH PACKAGING INFORMS MASSACHUSETTS GOVERNOR DEVAL PATRICK ON BENEFITS OF EMPLOYEE PROGRAMS OFFERED BY BRISTOL COMMUNITY COLLEGE

During a tour of the Workforce Center of Bristol Community College, Mike Keneally, Owner and Vice President of Accutech Packaging, spoke to a group including the Governor along with Massachusetts Secretary of Education, Matthew Malone, about the employee training programs offered through Bristol Community College.

Accutech employees have had the opportunity to enroll in some of these programs with great success.

Access to such programs allows individuals to realize their potential, become more of an asset to a company, and increases their overall confidence. For example: "Accutech employee Laura Martinez has worked with the company for 12 years. This past year she enrolled in Bristol Community College's English for speakers of other languages program. Martinez called the program "a good opportunity."

Today Martinez continues to excel while attending the English program which is held onsite at Accutech. The company is very proud of Laura and all Accutech employees who participate in these programs.

About Accutech: Accutech Packaging produces custom plastic thermoformed packaging, paper mailers and envelopes, and paperboard specialties. We also offer in-house tooling, design and product fulfillment. In addition, Accutech manufactures mail order packaging equipment to automate the outbound shipping process.
